Names of Dress Materials.

As a general rule it is pretty safe to guess that the name of a dress material comes from some place. Besides such obvious cases as "astrakhan," "cashmere" and "tweed" there are "fustian" (the humble an alogue of velvet) from Fustat (Cairo); "muslin," from Mosul in Mesopotamia; "damask," from Damascus, and "cambric," from Cambria, while "millinery" itself is from Milan.—London Chronicle.

The women of Japan are sharing in the advance of progressive ideas with the men. That is the reason why the nation is so far ahead in its progress of other oriental nations. They are bringing progress into the very foundation of the nation—the home.

How many young ladies who received valentines this year regarded them seriously? Lovers have outgrown the bashfulness of those of a few generations ago, and now express their sentiments more directly, even if in a less poetic manner; and the sending of valentines is chiefly an amusement for children to-day.
